Build and scale seven-figure brands
using the retention method.

This is without thin margins, revolving door customers, or virality.

I'll be opening the floor for a Q&A if you stay until the very end.

Here's what we'll be covering tonight...

1 How to select repeat-purchase products in high-performing niches.

- 1 How to select repeat-purchase products in high-performing niches.
- 2 How to build your brand for longevity.

- 3 How to scale your brand with an organic and paid hybrid.

Let's talk about the trap that most people are stuck in with ecommerce.

It's launching rinse and repeat stores.

They just select whichever product is doing well at the moment.

It works while the trend is hot,
and then it dies off.

You end up back at square one with nothing to show for yourself.

This means that you're never actually moving forward with the business model.

The trap presents itself in three different ways...

The first is with thin margins.

You're paying a lot to acquire customers, because all of your sales are tied to individual ones.

The second is a reliance on virality.

Your revenue becomes very sporadic, because everything comes down to organic content.

The third is getting a revolving door of customers.

They have no option but to leave,
because you're giving them nothing else to buy.

There exists a completely different approach to ecommerce that you can take.

It's something that I've named
“the retention method.”

It literally flips this issue on its head.

It gives you way higher margins.

It helps build enterprise value.

It prevents you from having to restart all the time.

Picture waking up to a phone full of notifications.

You've gotten overnight sales from existing customers.

You work on some ad creatives and split tests.

The rest of the day is yours from there.

The margins are super healthy.

You're able to pay to acquire the next handful of customers with a single sale.

You're running a legitimate brand.

It's actually worth something to the market.

All of your efforts and sacrifice are compounding.

You don't have to worry about restarting all the time.

Would learning how to make this happen be worth the next hour of your time?

Type "YES" in the chat if it would.

I'm Nathan Miller.

It was just a few years ago that I was working at Chipotle with multiple failed stores.

I had $30 left in my bank account and $8,000 worth of credit card debt.

I've become an ecommerce millionaire.

I'm running two separate brands with over $3,000,000 in sales each.

I began teaching others
how to do the exact same.

Before I found Nathan on YouTube, I v other ecom YouTubers and Discords t when I saw he started a community, I one of the most genuine people in this that actually helps

They all saw massive success with it as well.

What changed from then until now?

I stopped always trying to make a quick buck and started prioritizing retention.

This shift comes down to the three pillars that you're about to learn.

Type "YES" in the chat if you're ready.

Pillar One:

How to select repeat-purchase products in high-performing niches.

Most people are actually pretty great at this.

The problem is that they're letting customers go.

This causes their margins to stay super thin.

They're only able to make one sale from the customers that they're paying to acquire.

The trick is selecting products in the same way,
but with a single added constraint.

You need to confine them down to repeat-purchase products in high-performing niches.

This means that all of your customers are bound to come back for more.

This is provided that your products are good in the first place.

This causes your LTV to climb without impacting your CAC.

The wider that the gap is,
the higher that your margins are.

This is exactly what Alex did.

He had a $10,000 day within his very first month.

Is everything making sense so far?

Type "YES" in the chat if it is.

Pillar Two:
How to build your brand for longevity.

Most people are launching rinse and repeat stores.

They should be running a legitimate brand.

This means that they're only ever getting immediate cash flow.

There's no enterprise value being created.

It causes them to cut so many corners.

They end up burning goodwill with their customers.

You want to have multiple repeat-purchase products.

All of your customers can buy different ones over and over again.

They'll inevitably bring you others
free of charge if there's a good experience.

You're still getting the immediate cash flow.

Your business is now worth something to the market though.

You end up with digital real estate instead of an income stream.

It's been night and day for my students.

Are you still with me?

Type "YES" in the chat if you are.

Pillar Three:

How to scale your brand with an organic and paid hybrid.

Nobody wants to lean entirely on paid advertising.

They end up leaning entirely on organic content.

This causes their revenue to become sporadic.

They have no consistency or predictability to scale from.

The answer isn't one or the other.

It's a relationship between the two.

You should think of paid advertising like the base that can be relied on.

You can think of organic content like the randomized testing platform.

This has been a game changer for us.

Nathan's dropshipping course is hands-down one of the best. It's packed with step-by-step guidance, covering everything from finding products to setting up a store and driving traffic with ads. Unlike other courses that just skim the surface, Nathan dives deep into strategies that actually work.

What I love most is how beginner-friendly it is, whether you're a complete beginner or looking to scale, this course gives you the tools and knowledge you need to succeed.

What do you think about the retention method?

Type "YES" in the chat if you're a fan.

Would you like to run legitimate brands instead of launching rinse and repeat stores?

Can you see the retention method working for you?

Has this free live masterclass done a good job at explaining how it works?

There are three paths that you can take from here on out...

The first is doing absolutely nothing and continuing to launch rinse and repeat stores.

The second path is trying on your own to run legitimate brands.

The third path is making the shift alongside somebody who has already done it.

I spent years stuck on the first two paths.

I've built the third path so that you don't have to as well.

Are you fine with me showing you what this would look like?

Type "YES" in the chat if you are.
